

The Nebraska Coaches Association Proudly Announces Win-Win Partnership with ARYSE

The Nebraska Coaches Association (NCA) is pleased to announce our partnership with ARYSE, a Nebraska-based orthopedic and sports bracing provider specializing in revolutionary products that reduce life-limiting injuries.

The ARYSE team, including Curt Carlson and Doak Ostergard, is driven by core values of integrity, alignment, innovation, excellence, and generosity. These values contribute to the unique and positive culture of ARYSE. Together with Ostergard, ARYSE integrated a technology referred to as functional stability. Functional stability is built into the ARYSE FAST (functional anatomic stabilization technology) line and provides athletes with the dynamic support they need without restricting or limiting their performance.

ARYSE is now the exclusive sponsor of the NCA Service Awards. These awards are given annually to recognize NCA members, coaches, and athletic administrators that have served their schools and student-athletes well for 25, 35, 40, 45 and 50 years. ARYSE will also have a presence at several NCA events including the annual Multi-Sports Clinic attended by over 2,000 NCA members.

“The Nebraska Coaches Association is proud to partner with ARYSE and offer their game-changing products to our student-athletes. We believe coaches, athletic directors, and athletic trainers will greatly benefit as a result of this win-win partnership,” explained Darin Boysen, Executive Director of the Nebraska Coaches Association.

ARYSE is now also a partner of the Nebraska State Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association (NSIAAA).

Shelli McClintock, ARYSE Owner and VP of Partnerships, states, “ARYSE believes in the mission and directives of both the Nebraska Coaches Association and the Nebraska State Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association. Our team is honored to partner with their members to bring student-athletes the best in injury prevention and recovery.”
